Waste Switch & REHIS – Business Waste Disposal

At Waste Switch, we are experts in providing holistic waste management solutions. In order to support this, we are delighted to partner the Royal Environmental Health Institute of Scotland (REHIS) in producing the Business Waste Disposal staff training course

WasteSwitch Ltd & REHIS – Business Waste Disposal Employee Training Course

Available as either an on or offsite, presented or E learning entry level staff training course, accredited by the Royal Environmental Health Institute of Scotland aimed at all employees in Scotland, providing a working understanding and awareness of the relevant waste management regulations and legislation that they must adhere to.

It provides practical and demonstrated guidance and recommendations on how to successfully implement the learnings within the learners place of work and makes it clear to them that every employee action's are vital in relation to ensuring compliance.

The course focuses strongly on providing detailed information, guidance and worked examples so that the learner understands the significant reductions in both the companies Carbon Footprint and how they can reduce the CO2 output if the correct recycling procedures are in place. We also provide access to a CO2 Reduction reporting tool for those who would benefit from accessing and producing additional detailed reports.

The modules of the course are detailed below:

- The Waste Scotland 2012 regulations
- The Duty of Care Code legislations
- The Local Authority requirements
- How to reduce your Carbon Footprint and CO2 production by Recycling
- How to embed and integrate the regulation and legislation within the workplace
- Consequences for non-compliance
- Business Specific Module (This is part of the course where we bespoke the module to include specific areas that the business would wish to be included)
- Multiple Choice Assessment

We believe that the industry is at a critical point in relation to the enforcement of all waste management regulations and the focus and requirements on businesses has never been greater, with environmental procedures and compliance being discussed at all levels within a business.
